When You Lead, Do They See Jesus?

Just how much of you is leading your ministry? What if someone told you they can't see Jesus because there's too much of you and too little of Him? In this article, Leslie Bennett challenges you to examine the subtle ways that self can take center stage in ministry—and how a life surrendered to the cross makes room for Christ to be clearly seen. You'll be encouraged to lead in a way that points others not to you but to Him.

Hear from Nancy: Set Apart for the Lord's Service

"All believers, we're told in the New Testament, are priests unto God, servants of the Lord. But like the Levites, we have been given an additional privilege, as leaders, of being set apart for what we sometimes call vocational service of the Lord." In this message shared with the Revive Our Hearts staff, Nancy DeMoss Wolgemuth explains what it means to live purified and presented to the Lord before we perform and do our work.

A Summer Invitation to Dwell Deeply with God

Summer is the perfect time to slow down and learn to make space for what matters most.

Invite the women you lead to experience fresh delight in God's presence through Dwell: 30 Days with God in the Psalms by Nancy DeMoss Wolgemuth. This recently updated book will help them unpack the beauty inside thirty psalms and learn to lie down in green pastures as the goodness of God's Word surrounds, supports, and satisfies them.

Wisdom for Leaders Straight from God's Word

You can read all the leadership books in the world, but none compare to the wisdom of God's Word. Recommit today to spending daily time soaking in the truth of Scripture. It's not too late to join ROH's Read Through the Bible plan and to invite your ministry team to read alongside you. Join us in 1 Kings and look closely at the lives of biblical leaders—those who walked in obedience to God and those who chased their own desires—and consider what their choices teach you about the kind of leadership that truly honors Him.
